

PREFACE

Dear Reader, you are browsing the first issue of the thirteenth volume of TNTeF – Interdisciplinary eJournal of Gender Studies. The Spring issue is traditionally a selection of papers delivered at the annual gender and sexuality conference organized the previous fall by TNT, the Gender Studies Research Group, University of Szeged. In September 2022, we could at long last come together in person for the first time after Covid-19! The title of the 17th conference was Feminism and Memory. Out of the thirty presentations, we have selected eight contributions to be reworked for publication in the current issue. All contributions are first publications. Let me inform you that the content of our journal has been selected by the academic database, EBSCO, providing access to all scholarly publications in TNTeF.

For those readers interested in the changes of the size of readership of the journal, as well as for archival purposes and comparative information, the counter of the journal's homepage reads 79.708 now – not including direct access to the individual contributions. We are grateful for your ongoing interest.

This issue continues our editorial policy of publishing articles of a transnational and diverse research in the various disciplinary fields of feminist scholarship. We are particularly happy about the balanced presence of humanities and social sciences. We proudly recommend in particular the two articles that won the Audience Award for the best talk – the *Wonder Woman* fridge magnet that evokes the 1941 American Comics figure. One is by Judit Gera, who won the audience's appreciation on the event of her first attendance of the conference. The title of her paper is Postmemory of School Photos Taken of Piroska Lázár's Girls' Grammar School. The other one is Creating and Recreating Minka Czóbel's Literary Memory: Making Myth in Print and Digital Media by Erika

Kapus. In fact, for the first time in the history of the award, it was shared, and shared by three presentations! The third one, by Éva Federmayer, will be published in the Fall issue. On behalf of the Editorial Board, we extend our heartfelt congratulations!

We would also like to announce a change in the NEWS column. Beginning with the 12: 1 issue, we include only information on free access to journals, special issues, or books. We do not include CFPs for publications or conferences, assuming that everyone should follow those in their respective fields of scholarship in languages they speak.

In line with our Editorial objectives, translations, original studies, and responses to publications in our back issues are welcome (tntef.journal@gmail.com). If you would like us to consider your work for review, please contact our Review Editor, Andrea Tóth. The appropriate copies of publications (books or special journal issues) should be sent to our postal address (Erzsébet Barát, 6722 Szeged, Egyetem u. 2. Hungary).

We say a special thank you to Ilona Csilla Dér for the photo adapted for the cover design.
